Q: Parsing JSON in Python: Choosing the right JSON Parser I'm writing a Python script to extract some data from a JSON feed. I've gotten to the point where I parse through the feed to find what I'm looking for, but I'm not sure how to proceed. The feed contains an array of objects, and each object has a name and a "validity period". I'd like to sort the objects by validity period and then "keep" the first one and ignore the rest. This is the sample of the JSON feed (minus fields I don't need): { "feed": [ { "id": "123", "name": "Some Name", "validityPeriod": [ "February", "March", "April" ] }, { "id": "456", "name": "Some Other Name", "validityPeriod": [ "April", "June", "July" ] }, { "id": "789",

These injuries, ranging from simple skin lacerations to complex crush-type injuries, are caused by a wide variety of mechanisms. Treatment options are dictated by the degree of injury and the age and state of development of the child. The use of surgical and nonsurgical therapy is discussed. Regardless of the form of therapy, it is important to treat these injuries as soon as possible. If not treated promptly, a serious injury may become more complicated and life-threatening. the APA without a preference for the individual or the group. The language of the APA is clear as to the legal standard and the requirement for "preferential consideration of those values" is inarticulately stated, but is readily ascertainable. [4] At the time this case was considered, there was pending before the Supreme Court a petition for a writ of certiorari presenting questions involving the same issue. This fact does not prevent us from issuing an opinion which may eventually be reversed. Fraley v. Southall Realty Co., 240 F.2d 587, 589-90 (2d Cir. 1957). [5] The court in its opinion noted that there was conflicting evidence as to whether the property was valued at $1,170,000, or $1,545,000. [6] The subcommittee amended this section of the Act to permit "a collective representation of employees engaged in commerce, or in the production of goods for commerce, or employees handling, transporting, or in any other manner working on such goods or articles, or who handle, sell, or handle, transport, or in any other manner work on such goods or articles, [to] settle terms and conditions of employment, through conference or collective bargaining" between such employees and their employers.
