DragDrop for Outlook is a small 4 MB application written in C# that makes drag&drop between Outlook and many other applications possible again. A core part of the tool is the custom outlook menu, which offers many options. To get there, simply right-click on an email, select the 'Insert Link' menu option, and the custom menu will be presented. From here, you can copy/paste/drag and drop the emails you want in Outlook. This is similar to the functionality of Outlook's Custom Links menu, but more featured. The drag&drop feature is however the most interesting part of the app. A core point of DragDrop for Outlook is that it allows you to drag messages to and from websites. From there, you can easily share them (the user interface is rather bad, but it'll work). To get all the feature set, you can use DragDrop for Outlook's installer. Simply download it, and run it. If you don't have the add-on in your apps list, you can get it from an old version from the links above. You can also get DragDrop for Outlook through the main site. Blog.
