Some of you might have not heard about me, but I have written many articles for Anook magazine. I have done the cover blog for the April issue, which is all about happy-home improvement tips. I was so excited when the editor called and told me she was interested in my articles. I've always wanted to do a magazine cover, and now my dream is coming true! So a little bragging on me, but seriously, I am so thankful for the opportunity and that my article made its way to The Happy Home. It's the first of many projects I'm starting, so stay tuned for more great projects! Here are some of the quick and easy tips. I'll have more details for you soon. And maybe make yourself an old fashioned pie! I am so excited about the new recipes I am planning. I just can't wait to share them with you guys. Hi, I'm Kimberly. About Me I'm a stay at home mom to four little girls, and I'm married to the love of my life. We are taking a year to move closer to family and enjoy life. We plan to renovate a few things, do some fun projects and learn a lot about ourselves. Thanks for stopping by!

Wed, 02 Jun 2014 13:48:08 ZFinishing my current battle with a game that i have been wanting for a while now; Diablo 3. While my gaming tastes change at times I still remain a very loyal fan of Diablo. However the newest iteration of this classic franchise has changed all of that for it has a return of the original dark fantasy feel Diablo and not one of the graphics heavy cartoony cartoon franchise in the D2 (Diablo 2).

the next character is a bit off. In most of the other games that the characters appeared, they were displayed on the screen and talked to you directly. But here, they just appear and say their prepared lines... I just feel a little off. Furthermore, when fighting, if you are using the quick start power, you do not get any special effect. In other games, if you used the quick start, the enemies' forms would change to reflect your character, too. But here, the enemies just keep attacking you. You can just see their final, unchanging form. It is sort of disappointing. The character himself is perfect. Amazing text, as well as his actions. However, this slight text presentation is just kind of lacking." "Thank you very much for the epic story. Even the text is beautiful.
