Efficient molecularly imprinted polymer membranes for the removal of fluoride from water using functionalized multi-walled carbon nanotubes. A composite membrane, organic-inorganic hybrid-based Fluoro-MIP, was synthesized using a template of orange juice, MAA as functional monomer, EDC as a cross-linker and SiO₂ microparticles as the support matrix. Orange juice, which contains trace amount of fluoride ions is used to fabricate the Fluoro-MIP as the corresponding template. The functional monomer, MAA, is used to covalently bind with the template for constructing the molecularly imprinted membrane, while a non-selective adsorption ability is achieved through SiO₂ microparticles, which provide stable microchannel based on the reaction of host and the template, achieving to construct a Fluoro-MIP membrane. Then, the prepared Fluoro-MIP membrane was used to determine the fluoride ions removal capacity as well as the affinity and selectivity of the prepared Fluoro-MIP membrane. The prepared Fluoro-MIP membrane was found to remove as much as 81.5% of fluoride ions within 7 min while only 12.3% of fluoride ions removal was obtained with the Nafion membrane. The Fluoro-MIP membrane also shows a high affinity towards fluoride ions and has no selectivity to the cations. As a result, Fluoro-MIP membrane exhibits high fluoride ions removal potential which will provide an interesting way for the rapid and efficient capture of fluoride ions. error process by means of closures (as initially given by ESR) and refactoring (as brought out by Sue E). Sadly, very strange that EVar is the syntax used for declaring that no such variable actually exists, even though someone with even passable English skills could easily write a longer, more ambiguous sentence. ~~~ jblow I thought it was intended to be self-explanatory, and if not, then different

What's new:

Launched during Early Access last year, Elden Ring: Tarnished has received over 30 million downloads and become the number-one paid fantasy RPG on the Google Play Store. Following a community vote last month, Elder Scrolls Online: Elsweyr is now available worldwide.

“We're very excited to start testing the test servers and expanding the worlds of Elsweyr and Morrowind. As a thank you to those who have supported Elden Ring, we will be delivering their custom characters to them, allowing access to Elsweyr starting July 18,” said Ruxandra Varnea, Senior Producer, Bethesda Game Studios.

Current issues Would it be possible for the IPB and ITS to be moved to new forums, rather than the default/current forums. One of the recent commenting issues we've had is not being able to upload images into the forums. While this has been resolved, we would really like to see this thread moved if possible. I know it's been asked before, but I'd like a second opinion on this regarding help units: it's more of a MMO issue than a WW issue, but still relevant, if it's game-breaking (which I don't think it is). Units, like cut trees and devour oneself, pop and perish in seconds in our game. We can't control the time in-between units' aggression, we can't control the FFA timing/timing aggro with negative energy/attack/surprise abilities/etc. And thus--our game is feeling pretty...flawed. It's not a bug. Not a Beta issue. It's something the game can definitely be improved upon and made more balanced. I can tell that the devs are aware of it, and are now trying to fix it. But I don't think we're doing it in a way that is correct/honest to the game philosophy: this was one of the first things that I was told about the game during our beta test, and it is still true; we want to make sure NO ITEM or GAMEPLAY is game-breaking. How are we going to fix that? I think we need more units. The more time, the more attrition. No, it's not game-breaking. There are some interesting modifications I would like to try: - House decorations (kinda like a medieval bathroom) - Ore localization
