The new ground-breaking “HyperMotion Technology” incorporates player intelligence to create a reaction-driven gameplay engine, creating more off-the-ball intelligence and responsive ball control. Fans can also use “Motion Intelligence,” which analyzes the on-field players and applies advanced artificial intelligence elements to help players master intelligent, highly responsive and tailored gameplay. New features and improvements in FIFA 22 There are enhanced AI routines to help control players in important key moments. The Predictive Control system, which was developed with the input of more than 1,000 professional footballers and coaches, optimizes the pre-bounds defensive run-up, allowing players to run closer to the pre-bounds positions more efficiently and safely. The system also optimizes whether defenders use their dribbling skills. Players can also be told when to go for a pass by using the Natural Intelligence system, which takes into account the surrounding player and space to create more realistic player positioning. The Intelligent Dribbling System also features a new contextual approach, which creates a more realistic and intelligent feeling during dribbling, with players being more decisive and efficient in their controlled movement. Players now have an even better understanding of their teammates’ strengths and weaknesses to make smart decisions when on the ball. For example, defenders can now see the speed of their opponents when dribbling close to them. A new, dynamic turn/cut system is also used to create more of a dynamic, creative and fluid feel when dribbling as well as in passing and shooting. Players can use Sprint, Envelope and Intercept controls to have the ball in different areas of the pitch and attack in more effective ways. There are also greater visual and audio sensations to support the new gameplay and bring players a closer connection to the pitch. New Player Model and Motion Capture Players with a new, powerful and responsive engine are now closer to life. Players move more fluidly around the pitch, making them easier to control in the most demanding situations and taking into account their opponents’ technical, physical and biological aspects and the match’s physical, mental and strategic aspects. There are also new AI routines to help control players in important key moments. The predictive control system, which was developed with the input of more than 1,000 professional footballers and coaches, optimizes the
