This works fine in every browser except for IE. Here's the relevant jQuery snippet: // Image background $("#id_background").css({ 'background-image': "url('" + image + "')", 'background-repeat': "no-repeat", 'background-attachment': "fixed" }); A: How about setting the background position to that of the image instead of messing with the background-image. // Image background $("#id_background").css({ 'background-image': image, 'background-position': "center center", 'background-repeat': "no-repeat", 'background-attachment': "fixed" }); Q: Beginner Haskell Errors Haskell is a new language for me. I'm mainly a Java programmer, but am trying to learn it because it seems that learning haskell will increase my programming skills and the likelihood that I'll get work. I started on the youtube videos, but I've noticed something strange. When I compile and run some of the programs there are errors. The errors are simple, such as "Illegal name in pattern", "Illegal number in 'where' clause", but can be resolved if I comment out a line of code, which does not make sense to me. Could someone explain what is happening? I get the feeling that I'm misunderstanding something simple. Here is the full code, if it's necessary. *Main> let f = a *Main> (* f) type B = Int type C = B -> (B -> B) type D = C Int type PP = D

What is it about? Guidelines Format: Don't post the same question in multiple topics. Use the search function to check if your question has already been posted.

Please read the questions and their answers before asking a new question. Don't complain about moderation in a public forum. Moderator decisions are final. Do NOT vote in the OP. The OP should tell everyone why their question is closed. That information should remain on the question page, and you should not put it in your answer. When asking a question, tell the moderator(s) who closed it what they said/did/did not do that lead them to close it. This will aid in improving the closing logic. It is very important that you do this, as the moderators will not tell you. It is also very important if you wish to re-open the question. If you believe that the moderator acted unfairly in closing your question, send an email to the moderators with a link to the topic. Do this only if you still think the question is good. It's not necessary to send a link if the question is no longer good. Annoying the moderators by messaging them about a question that has been closed is a VERY BAD IDEA.

Moderators can't do anything about a question that is closed, and there is absolutely no reason for you to message them. If you believe a question should be reopened, just wait for the next moderator to come by. Your account is not suspended when you have been posting spambots for years. A suspension is a permanent deletion of your account. It is the only way to remove all of your posts, including the posts you are allowed to see. What is a spam bot? A spam bot is not human. It does not see or know the human concept of "privacy". Spambots do not honor privacy settings, and they neither send nor receive personal messages. Spambots only delete posts. INTRODUCTION ===== The eigenvector centrality method of finding influential users in online social networks was first introduced by Bang-Jensen and Freeman [1]. It measures the visibility or the influence of each node in the network by looking at its local neighborhood or, in other words, the set of the neighbors of that node. An individual can be considered to be highly visible if she/he is connected to a large number of nodes. Hence, this method is considered one of the most famous and common selection methods. The eigenvector centrality computes the visibility of a node in terms of a vector. A problem with this vector is that, usually, the network is not symmetric and hence, cannot be captured by the centrality vector. This problem was addressed by
