The actions could involve buying up enough real estate that you have. In many technical fields, it is necessary to heat or cool specific or small regions with extreme accuracy. For example, in the field of semiconductor manufacturing, there is a desire to control the temperature of individual semiconductor substrates with an accuracy of 10.sup.-2.degree.C. The processing of a single substrate normally takes a few seconds and requires the application of a thermal energy input of about 50 W. The current state of the art for such technology is to use a hot or cold plate in conjunction with a thermally isolated mounting. This type of system is illustrated in FIG. 1, where the cold plate is indicated by reference numeral 1. In this device, the substrate 2 to be heated or cooled rests on the cold plate 1, which is capable of being moved. This movement is achieved by means of the mechanical adjustment of the vertical displacement 3 of the cold plate 1. On its side facing the substrate 2, the cold plate 1 can be provided with a sheet of insulation 4, which is maintained at constant temperature by means of a thermal element 5 (
