How to get user profile on a sharepoint 2007 I have created a list in sharepoint 2007, then i need to allow this user to get his profile on that list, i have done it but when i tried to go to that list in my browser it says : Access denied. You do not have permission to view this page.

To view the contents of this page, use your Web browser to return to the page you came from. It seems that you do not have access to the "User Information Shared with Me" list. So how to get the user profile of that list on a sharepoint 2007? A: Unless the user is a site/subsite collection admin, they aren't going to have access to this site or list. You would be able to access it from a client computer or you could have your users share their profile with the list using some sort of tool like "The degree of success in congressional relations will go a long way to determine whether or not there is a political party," said UCLA political scientist Jim Stimson in a recent column in the Los Angeles Times. The Republican Party can't wait for more than five years to respond to Democrats' calls for compromise on fiscal issues, Stimson said. As a result, Democrats are proposing a "grand bargain" — a massive package of tax cuts and spending cuts — in return for Democratic support in the 2002 mid-term elections. That has angered Republicans in Congress, who have tried to portray Democrats as extortionists. At the same time, Social Security privatization is gaining momentum as President Bush pitches it to the public as a means of balancing the budget. Finding solace among the congressional-relations morass is a group of new public-relations firms; among the busiest of them is Samuel R. Ekejiuba & Partners, which is also the only public-relations firm with a biphasic foreign-policy portfolio. Ekejiuba was appointed by the House and Senate committees on intelligence to overhaul their congressional-relations operations. It is the only such firm that also provides public relations to the congressional leadership and is "doing a real-time analysis of all media events," said Todd Hays, the
