Wondering if you're missing some source codes because you're scared of facing bugs? Check out the list of the best source code editors here. You are a developer, right? Or maybe you just like playing one? Either way, the best hack tool that can really make your life easier is definitely Notepad++. And in case you're asking why the popular text editor deserves a spot in this list, here are some reasons why notepad++ is way better than any other text editor you ever tried: With Notepad++, there's just no limit on how big your text document or file can be. If you work on a project that needs a text file that's 20 MB or even more, you can keep on clicking 'Save as' until you're done. In case you're wondering what Notepad++ features can support such big files, just keep in mind that the open file size cannot be less than around 5 MB. If you go under that number, you might want to consider increasing your free disk space if you don't want to face any performance issues. It's fast as hell. You never want to wait for your text editor to parse large pieces of code that you're writing. With Notepad++, on the other hand, this doesn't happen. With an internal index, Notepad++ can actually process your code without you having to worry about it. This is because it knows what sections in the document are important, and what are not. As a result, searching, editing, and all the things that you want to be done fast are a breeze with it. It's very customizable. While developers often like to stick to one document to keep everything organized, Notepad++ lets you do that. It has a wide array of themes, styles, and colors. In addition, you can also make it open itself using different file extensions, but that's not all. What it does is that it will open every file that you choose to, using that specific extension. After installing, everything is very intuitive. For example, if you're not sure what a single line means, just you click it with your mouse and it will give you a quick tutorial on that very issue. That is true for most of the features of Notepad++ too. There's also a help button that you can click to actually
