: Practice Your Tongue I like the name Ivo Dodoo used for the tongue-trick he pulled off at the LAST Tantric Palm Opening Workshop, in the second-last class session I ever missed at the Blum Center because of the Great Three-Day Michigan Spring Surfing Contest. (The fact that I missed the whole workshop in the first place for this, the second-most-important leg of a multi-part series they held over three days, is criminal; I just got around to reading about it from the fine Relishing the Mysteries blog). Anyway, Ivo said, nothing special about this particular trick: just the tongue horizontal. In answer to a question from the audience about whether the tongue-horizontal was done at the same time as the pranic shaft upward or after, he agreed that, where there is no pranic flow, the tongue can be upturned. However, in any situation where there is a pranic channel upturned, the tongue will drop back down into the channel to mirror the pranic flow. I used this just the other day, and said so: I talked to a friend two weeks ago, and we talked about truth, and how there are no such things as true and false truths, only perspective. Well, I've tried practicing and practicing this tongue-horizontal. The next time I spoke with him, he said that what he'd been doing on the practice was lying in bed, "which does not reveal itself because of the distortion of expectations created by not being in the conscious mind. Just lie there for a while, and let it happen of its own volition." The next time I saw him, he said, "Well, here I am... I'm lying on the table at the Tantra Fest '95; it is very uncomfortable and doesn't work." Okay, you know, no problem, I'll just be lying there, too. It doesn't work. This character, I really like. He talks openly and clearly, with humor. He laughs and sings and occasionally breaks out into dancing. He takes shit from no one. He no longer believes in God (as I know through his Facebook status), but he has a great laugh when he's talking about the tang in his mouth as he goes down into the "subtle stuff." I now know (as I saw in a previous post), that the essence of love becomes apparent in the goal of humility

We asked him about his company's focus on top technologies, best practices for SEO and future development efforts to extract more data from their database. Read on to learn his thoughts. 1. StreamGetter.com Review: Tell us about StreamGetter.com. StreamGetter is an API based company that serves up some of the best and most innovative tools that exist in a digital world where you need to multi-cast and transcode streaming video. We provide tools to stream live and scheduled and scheduled content to any device. Through this platform, our customers can generate and supplement revenue from one location, thus avoiding the problems associated with producing content and deploying it in all the different forms. What have been your company's biggest successes over the last year? StreamGetter has a pretty stable platform and does not evolve that much in a year. Their introduction and feature set expansion was slow enough to continue to be a stable platform. The biggest success was converting new customers. We now have customers from over 10 countries. We've had new customers from coming in each day. Over the course of a year a company can only grow so much, but we're starting to see a lot of new features come online and eventually become major components of StreamGetter. We're planning to be a much larger firm and increase our focus. When did you start attending past VSLive events? 1 year ago! Are there any trends or technological advances you've seen that you'd like to see more at VSLive than you did last year? We've been quite happy with the amount of attention being paid to this year. There are many trends that will ultimately be the future of digital, but as a standalone VSLive event, we were pretty happy with it. This is the first time we are collaborating with StreamGetter as an exhibitor, and it!↵
