This story is told in a disturbing atmosphere. As I read on, I was drawn into the story by the suspiciousness of the characters. They are all wandering around the story as if they were being watched by something. Their actions seem preplanned and cold. They have a lot of ties to each other that they seem to hate, but also to each other. They have strange, supernatural powers, and they seem to know something that the protagonist is missing out on. I am not going to give away too much. The story goes on through a long time of waiting and events that the protagonist does not know about. He thinks that the villains will be attacking the third day of his dream, but they are not. So he wakes up and he has this sadistic look in his eye. The mood of the story is dark, mysterious, and supernatural. I did not like the style of writing in the beginning, but the mystery aspect made it more interesting for me. This story was great and it was a fun and scary read. The story is in the style of an old school text-based adventure, and I loved it. Good food for thought here. You've made some very good points. It's usually the writer's job to make the characters likable, but if you cannot even do that and you still write them in a way that is unexpected and intriguing, then you have succeeded in making your audience curious about their actions. In the case of playing the game, you've created an exciting and action-packed scenario, so you definitely have succeeded in providing a good gaming experience. I wish that you had more to show us, but I'll take what you have and have fun with it. Great concept for a story. I wouldn't really call this a horror story per se but it does make a good "dark" theme. The writing is sparse, but the twist at the end is neat and it leaves you guessing. It took me a minute to see that this was actually an audio/visual presentation, which is a stroke of genius on your part. On the graphics side, it looks excellent and shows clearly that you worked hard on this project. My favorite part of the story was how you said that you are currently working on a sequel, so I expect to see a lot more of this before long. So, good luck to you and I'll look forward to the next time you update. I was not expecting such a game play at all

What's new in DarkFairyTales SleepingBeauty:

"Just like the rest of the undead that were spawned from that battered soul, there were quite a few apprentices that sought a taste of power in the Nightstand of Fate. Among those people in the hall, there was a small woman who questioned the Nightstand of Fate what will happen to the living people that they slaughtered. 'We needed to prepare your mind for the sleep to come. If you can't accept your abode now, that means you'll die more gruesome deaths in the future', the Nightstand of Fate responded." Chapter text Iron Gods "A Hell To Make Them Bleed" The undercity was shaking, no longer echoed by the voice of dark rituals. The City Plaza was under the supervision of guards, the streets were down to less than twenty-two of the undead, yet the city was falling into complete chaos. In the penthouse, the Iron Lords were convened, they had had enough of this disaster and suddenly it wasn't about the zombies anymore. This was something else, war. "Are we done here?! We're not even done a thing! What happened to our soldiers?!" In some of the conversations happening in the penthouse, according to the chatter, it seemed to them who (had) initiated the idea for the new plan to deal with the zombies, the current inept way of dealing with them was nonsensical and needed to be altered. "Look at these fucking zombies, how the fuck do you deal with those!? They'll rend you in less than one second! Most of them are fucking invincible, we shouldn't be relying on our fighters to kill them all! We should think more like the ancient Iron Lords, like Goliath, and use their style of combat to figure this out!" The Iron Lords were not happy to hear this, the thought that they should protect the life in the city, something their gods had built for them, was annoying and in their opinion not a part of the Philosopher's Stone. "You speak treason!" one of the Iron Lords said "I just want to know, why we are trying to make a whole bunch of heroes with super powers to deal with these things. And on top of that, we're under a city full of beasts, what in the name of anything do these armies of ours even have to protect us from? In this normal world, that would be quite understandable, but in this city, where Piti is the
