I have a list: my list = ['a','b','c','d','e','f','q'] I have a new list, let say for example: changed list = ['a','b','d'] How can I use find to find the same element that is in the changed list? I want the following result: ['c', 'e', 'f', 'g'] I want to compare the two lists and find the element that is in the changed list and not in the original list. A: There is no 'find' like method in list but you can use index: original list = ['a','b','c','d','e','f','q'] new list = ['a','b','d'] index = new list.index(x) print(original list[index]) Output: c if you are trying to get the values then you can use enumerate: my list = ['a','b','c','d','e','f','g'] new list = ['a','b','d'] print([''.join(x)]for x in enumerate(my list) if x not in new list]) Output: ['c', 'e', 'f', 'q'] A: Using enumerate() my list = ['a','b','c','d','e','f','g'] 0cc13bf012

IviewForYouV4zip IviewF file in your E:\. You can use it to recover deleted files. However, it does not include the configuration file (IviewForYouXML) of the original software. In fact, it is the only anti-malware program you can depend on when it comes to killing iview. It is designed to capture the files and archives in the inventory and to collect them in a single location on your hard drive. What's more, it can also stop iview permanently. Getting rid of iview from my computer and ensure that it is not running again is now my only concern. As a bonus, IViewForYou can remove no media discs anymore, as it removes iview, too, After all, removing iview alone would be a good start, but this program does much more. It is very easy to use and doesn't need a lot of your time. You can also repair files that have been damaged. What's more, it can kill if you forget to turn off the computer and stop iview from running.
