At the 3rd Congress of the Communist Party in July 1919 (which was basically a gathering of delegates loyal to Vladimir Ilyich Lenin) the question of the relations between the peasants and the soviets was raised; it focused on the agricultural sector of the Soviet Republic. The rapporteur of the session was M.V.Shapiro, a veteran revolutionist active in the Caucasus during the civil war, who repeatedly stressed the role of the peasantry as the driving force of the soviet revolution. Despite all this, however, the name of K.E.Tsedun- a leading worker in the Ukraine - was introduced by the Central Committee for the first time in connection with the Ukraine. And yet, one hundred and four years before, Tsedun was a prominent member of the Ural organization of the Social Democracy of the Russian Empire, he along with other extremists (among them, K.I.Dugan and K.I.Razin) were a very close disciples of the Mensheviks. They then published the yellow journal, The Bolshevik, which adopted the technique of mockery, straw argumentation, and slander and repeated the Mensheviks and the Right wing of the Social Revolutionaries traditions of the Russo-Turkish War and the Government of General Kornilov. They also formed a group with the aim of carrying the popularity of the soviet movement to the workers and peasants. They attracted to their cause the workers in the South of Russia, as well as those in the Urals. He was arrested, sentenced to death in November, the same month his paper was closed, but saved his life by taking refuge in Switzerland. In the years following his death, Tsedun was acclaimed as an heroic figure in the history of the soviet movement.
