The Hike: From the Parking Lot St. Louis is a big place, with some 9,100 square miles and approximately 1.4 million people. It is over three times the size of Manhattan. Within its borders are some of the nation's best-known tourist attractions, like the Gateway Arch and the St. Louis Science Center, but it also has miles of back-country trails for bikers, walkers, and hikers. Many people make the trek from their house to one of the arch's observation decks by driving down the Henry Shaw Expressway, which runs along I-70, the country's highest-elevation interstate. But a couple of the city's trails, which start from I-70 exit 142 and from the parking lot of the St. Louis Science Center, go through some of the city's most stunning natural and cultural landscapes. Don't be surprised if you notice your heart rate spiking as you contemplate the next few hours on your hike. There is not a lot of traffic on these trails, because they are not on major streets, so you will be able to appreciate the RegSupreme is an easy to use registry cleaner that automatically scans the registry and repairs and found issues. Although this kind of software solutions usually requires a bit more computer knowledge, RegSupreme relies on a much more user friendly interface, with just two options displayed in the main window. While users are prompted to choose between “Registry Cleaner” and “Registry Compactor”, more detailed information is available under the help menu, where each of you can get assistance on any of the built-in features. Just like its name suggests, the so-called “Registry Compactor” is a tool designed to reduce the size of the registry without even removing some of the entries. Although the developer says it's 100 percent safe, it's highly recommended to make a backup before anything else. The “Registry Cleaner” on the other hand provides two different modes, normal and aggressive, with users required to pick the scans to be performed. The available options include file reference scan, file extension scan, obsolete software scan, help file entry scan, application path scan and Shared Component entry scan. More settings are available through the tabs listed at the top of the main window, so you can also configure the results formats, search words and play a bit with more advanced options such as automatically fix all found errors and use as little CPU power as possible. RegSupreme completes the scan in no time and remains very light on hardware resources, while working flawlessly on all Windows iterations. Overall, RegSupreme does what it says, but we admit that a more appealing interface could be a great

What's New in the?

RegSupreme is a free, easy-to-use and powerful tool designed to detect and repair registry problems. It uses automatic registry scanning and removal techniques, in order to repair the registry and reduce the size, without losing any of the important entries. It is recommended to use an alternate registry backup copy.

The new "Registry Compactor" feature allows you to compact the registry, while keeping the important entries. It also provides an option for completely removing obsolete software entries. Normal Scan: This mode scans all the Windows registry, in order to find and repair any problematic entries. It is recommended to use an alternate registry backup copy.

Aggressive Scan: The aggressive scan mode is recommended to use with a backup copy of the registry. It scans the Windows registry in order to find and fix obsolete and potentially harmful entries. File reference scan: This option scans all the entries under the "HKEY_LOCAL_MACHINE\Software" folder. This scan is very fast. File extension scan: This option scans all the entries under the tVersion\Uninstall" folder. This scan is very fast. Help file entry scan: This option scans the entries found under the "HKEY_LOCAL_MACHINE\Help\applications" and "HKEY_LOCAL_MACHINE\Help\Addins" folders. This scan is very fast. Application path scan: This option scans all the entries under the "HKEY_LOCAL_MACHINE\Software\Microsoft\Windows\CurrentVersion\Uninstall\" folder. This scan is very fast. Shared Component entry scan: This option scans all the entries found under the "HKEY_LOCAL_MACHINE\Software\Wow6432Node\Microsoft\Windows\CurrentVersion\Uninstall" folder. This scan is very fast. More options: Choose the type of fix for the registry entries, you want to perform: • Delete the registry key • Replace the registry key • Mark registry entries as "Never delete" • Mark registry entries as "Always delete" • Mark registry entries as "Only if an error is found"

Obsolete software scan: This option scans all the entries under the
